CISO AS A SERVICE

Expert protection, without the overhead.

The shortage of resources and skills in cybersecurity is a major concern for businesses. The demand for qualified professionals is high, but there are not enough skilled employees to meet the demand. The rapid evolution of technology and new cyber threats requires constant updating of skills. This shortage puts organisations at risk of cyber-attacks and requires a collective effort from governments, educational institutions, and businesses to promote cybersecurity education and training to address the issue.

WHAT IS CISO AS A SERVICE?

Chief Information Security Officer (CISO) as a Service is a model of information security management that involves procuring the services of a CISO to provide security leadership and expertise to an organisation on a temporary or part-time basis. The service is designed to provide an organisation with access to the expertise of a CISO without having to hire a full-time CISO.

In this model, your organisation has access to a team of certified security professionals who can provide guidance and support for comprehensive security strategy.
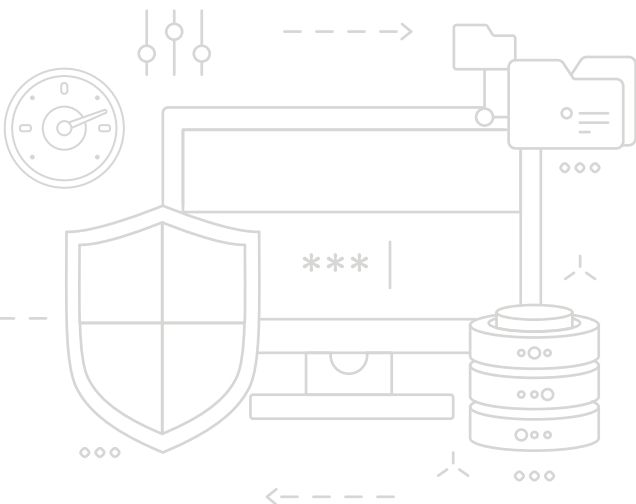

HOW IT WORKS AND THE BENEFITS

COST EFFICIENT

Hiring a full time CISO or certified cyber security staff can be quite costly and burdensome in today's market as there is a shortage of skills globally within the cyber security domain. Under CISO as a service, organisations pay for the services they need.

ACCESS TO MULTIPLE SECURITY SKILL SETS

CISO as a service provides organisations access to a wide variety of security skillsets, from a CISO, Security Architect, Security GRC to Security Operations.

SCALABILITY

CISO as a service provides organisations the flexibility to scale their cyber security resourcing based on their needs. This is crucial as it allows organisations to scale up and down based on business and regulatory requirements.
